

ABOUT COMSTAR, LLC

"Being connected" to the Internet is as important in today's business culture as having a telephone. A company's natural instinct is to try and make the connection itself. But to do this effectively and reliably, it takes secure facilities; high-speed connections; on-site staff educated in the areas of Internet technology, web server management, Internet security, and much more; a reliable energy source to ensure safe and consistent service; and the right Internet connections.

It's a matter of simple economics, expertise and experience. Colocating your server lets you enjoy economies of scale to reduce expensive internetworking hardware and maintenance costs. By letting our colocation experts manage your server needs, your time is free to focus on your core business.
